AFTER DEVLIN CAME BRADLEY.

The reputations of several pitchers have been badly mangled by the Chicago Club this year, and it is much to the credit of Mr. Bradley, of St. Louis, that he has stood up against the heavy batters better than any other pitcher in the business. His record was, up to yesterday, far superior to that of Bond, Devlin, or any of the other "Terrors" of the West or East. But Bradley's day had to come, as well as that of lesser men, and yesterday proved his Waterloo. The Chicago had lost five games to St. Louis, and a youngster named Walker had burglarized them out of another before the game took place at all; and so, having lost a majority of the series, and having everything to win and nothing to lose, the Whites untied themselves, and batted freely, sharply, and surely. Between 4,000 and 5,000 people (by count, not by guess) were present, and at times went so far with their impartiality as to suggest to the casual and uninformed observer that perhaps these were St. Louis people only better behaved.

The audience were evidently much pleased at the reappearance of that hard-working philosopher Addy, and greeted him with round after round of applause, which he amply deserved by his fine batting.

Spalding, having borrowed an unfortunate gold piece from an unlucky gentleman, lost the toss, and Barnes presented himself at the plate, and, after dancing away from Bradley's rather wild delivery for the time set down in the rules, was sent to base on balls. Anson staid around for a good ball until two strikes were called on him, when he cracked a liner into right field, and took first. Blong returned the ball to first to catch him, and, inasmuch as Dehlman let it pass him, Barnes went to third and Anson to second. A wild pitch let Barnes' run in, and Anson to third. McVey made a good effort to let Anson's run in by a hit toward right field. It was, however, well picked up by McGeary, but so badly thrown to Clapp as to give both men safe. White hit a hard one which was muffed by Pike, and McVey worked around to third and White to second. Hines' out by Mack to Dehlman let McVey home and White to third, and he scored on a juggle by Mack of Spalding's hit. Glenn was muffed by McGeary; but, when he undertook to get himself run out between first and second in order to save Spalding's run, he was unsuccessful, and Spalding was run out by a clever catch by Clapp from McGeary's throw. In the last half of the inning, Pike opened the St. Louis batting with a long one to right field which was safe for two bases; but sharp fielding by Addy and Barnes to Anson caught him before he reached third.

In the second inning, after two men were out, Barnes hit a beautiful liner to the left field fence for three bases, and was sent home by Anson's second good hit of the game. The third inning yielded the first run for St. Louis, Mack being the lucky man, and getting his first on a high throw by Anson to McVey.

In the fourth inning Spalding opened with a long one to left centre for two bases, and then, after two men were out, Barnes cracked a fine liner to left for two bases, and Anson fell up against the sphere for three bases on one which went over Pike's head. McVey earned the third run by skipping one merrily past Mack at short.

The sixth inning yielded the home nine two unearned runs on an error by Cuthbert, a base hit by Addy, and several passed balls.

The seventh inning gave every member of the White Stockings a chance at the stick, and resulted in the best display of batting in any one inning this season. After Peters had made an easy out to Clapp, White and Hines followed with successive safe two-basers to the left-field fence. Spalding was then muffed by Dehlman off Battin's throw; but Glenn hit safely past second, and Addy drove a high one to left centre for two bases. After Barnes' out to Pike, on which Addy scored, Anson the Great took more than usually good aim, and, getting square on the ball with all the force of which he was possessed, drove it almost to the fence in right centre field, and came all the way home amidst a storm of applause for the longest hit ever seen on the ground, and the only home-run ever made by a hit inside the fences.

In the eighth inning the Chicago earned three runs by good batting by Peters, Hines, Glenn, and Spalding, the latter putting on record a splendid three-baser over Blong's way. In the ninth inning, the home nine freshened up again and knocked out four runs by fine, hard hitting, the best work being Peters' and White's two-basers. The visitors made a run in the eighth and another in the last inning, Glenn being responsible for the first and McVey for the last. Following is REMARKS.

In yesterday's TRIBUNE it was stated, with all fairness and desire for impartiality, that the Chicago Club had lost the game which decided the championship of the West by being outplayed. In the same truthful spirit it is proper now to wonder, in view of yesterday's game, how it was that St. Louis ever won any one of the series. The fine work yesterday was done for the Chicago by Anson, who ranged around and played in all sorts of curious ways, but always with a desire, intent, and will to win. His batting was the best ever shown against Bradley on these grounds. Addy had as many first-bases, but made only one long drive, while Anson has a total of 9 bases. The Browns were in the very middle of an off day, and made errors all around, every man having at least one.

REVIEW OF THE CHICAGO-ST. LOUIS SERIES.

Yesterday's game closed the championship series of ten games between the Chicago and St. Louis Clubs. Below will be found a record showing the result of every game played, with the individual records of each player, the total runs, base hits, errors, and times at bat, with the average of each per man. Following is the list of games played, with the aggregate scores:

Time and place.	Chicago.	St. Louis.
May 6—At St. Louis.....	0	1
May 8—At St. Louis.....	3	2
May 19—At Chicago.....	1	4
May 20—At Chicago.....	6	3
Aug. 15—At St. Louis.....	3	6
Aug. 17—At St. Louis.....	0	3
*Aug. 21—At St. Louis.....	0	9
Aug. 22—At Chicago.....	12	2
Aug. 25—At Chicago.....	6	8
Aug. 26—At Chicago.....	23	3
Total.....	54	41

*The actual score stood: St. Louis, 7; Chicago, 6; but the umpire gave the game to the St. Louis by a score of 9 to 0.

The following table shows all other particulars as to the club records as wholes, without reference to the individual players, whose batting and fielding records and averages will be found further on:

	Chicago.	St. Louis.
Total runs made.....	54	41
Average to a game.....	5.4	4.1
Total runs earned.....	25	15
Average to a game.....	2.5	1.5
Percentage of runs earned to runs made.....	.46	.34
Total base-hits made.....	94	99
Average to a game.....	9.4	9.9
Total times at bat.....	388	387
Average to a game.....	38.8	38.7
Proportion of runs made to base-hits.....	.57	.41
Total number of errors made.....	62	78
Average errors to a game.....	6.20	7.80
Proportion of base-hits to times at bat.....	.24	.25
Proportion of runs made to times at bat.....	.14	.10

It appears, therefore, that the Chicago made 54 runs to their opponents' 41, and earned 25 as against 15. In errors the St. Louis take precedence, with a total of 78 to the Chicago's 62.

The batting and run-getting records of the two clubs come next, the names being arranged in the order of batting merit. By a reference to the fourth column the true test—that is, the percentage of base hits to times at bat—will be at once observed:

BATTING RECORD CHICAGO-ST. LOUIS SERIES.

PLAYERS.	Games played.	Base hits.	Times at bat.	Percentage of base hits to times at bat.	Average of base hits per game.	Runs made.	Average runs to a game.
Chicago.

Peters.....	10	9	43	.209	.90	7	.70
Hines.....	10	9	43	.209	.90	4	.40
Glenn.....	10	8	40	.200	.80	6	.60
Bielaski.....	6	0	22	.000	.00	0	.00
St. Louis.
Blong.....	10	14	40	.350	1.40	4	.40
Bradley.....	10	12	41	.292	1.20	4	.40
Clapp.....	10	12	46	.262	1.20	6	.60
Pike.....	10	13	47	.277	1.30	7	.70
Cuthbert.....	10	12	44	.272	1.20	2	.20
McGeary.....	10	12	47	.255	1.20	5	.50
Dehlman.....	10	9	39	.230	.90	4	.40
Battin.....	10	10	46	.217	1.00	4	.40
Mack.....	6	4	23	.181	.66	2	.33
Pearce.....	4	1	15	.066	.25	1	.25

It will be seen that White leads the van of the Chicago, followed closely by Anson and Anson. For the St. Louis Blong takes first place, Bradley, Clapp, and Pike following in order. Blong's average is the same as White's, while the next three on the Chicago list rank Bradley, so that the honors rest with the home nine. Barnes leads the run-getting record, with a total of 11 runs, while White, Anson, and Barnes, with 8 each, all take precedence of Pike, the St. Louis champion, who only scored 7.
